

About us

Dakshini is a non-profit organization dedicated to serving the Indian Bengali community across Greater Los Angeles, Orange County, and Riverside County for nearly 40 years. It is committed to promoting cultural, social, and educational activities among Indian Americans while fostering cross-cultural understanding. Through the Dakshini Foundation, the organization engages in philanthropy and supports youth with scholarships and leadership programs. Dakshini also provides opportunities for artistic expression and senior engagement, striving to integrate Indian culture into mainstream America while nurturing community harmony.

Cultural Program

Dakshini connects a diverse group of professionals in Southern California, including engineers, doctors, scientists, and professors, within a vibrant community of over 4,500 members. We offer numerous opportunities for businesses to gain visibility, including promotions through our magazine, email newsletters, concert stage announcements, website features, booths, banners, and posters. We invite you to participate and engage with our community. Additionally, we celebrate Durga Puja (October 11-13, 2024), a major festival attracting over 3,500 attendees from the Indian community, providing a significant platform for exposure and engagement.
